2020 Highlight

At the beginning of the pandemic, millions of Americans faced widespread unemployment and loss of access to in-person support systems. The CareerOneStop team leveraged the CareerOneStop platform to assist job seekers and intermediaries with their rapidly evolving needs such as applying for unemployment benefits, finding work, and if necessary, considering a new career. The team added unemployment insurance information to the CareerOneStop homepage, updated unemployment insurance FAQs daily, and posted time-sensitive blog articles on topics such as which industries were hiring and job search tips during a pandemic. As a result of this initial work, CareerOneStop experienced a huge spike in traffic with nearly 23 million page views in April, a 250% increase over pre-pandemic levels.

The team also launched an Employment Recovery portal, a one-stop resource to help people meet their short-term employment assistance needs during the pandemic. The portal also helps people achieve their longer-term goals, such as adjusting career plans in light of the evolving job market. The portal supports the mission of the U.S. Department of Labor to promote the welfare of American wage earners and job seekers, as well as to assure access to work-related benefits and rights.

This work established CareerOneStop as an authoritative source for both job seekers and workforce professionals. During the pandemic, CareerOneStop was nationally recognized and mentioned by several publications including The New York Times and several television news programs such as MSNBC and the Today Show. Traffic to CareerOneStop’s unemployment insurance related content surged to nearly 10 million page views. As traffic continued to rise and more sites linked to CareerOneStop, Google reached out to the team to collaborate. Google recognized CareerOneStop’s Unemployment Insurance FAQs as authoritative and as a result, CareerOneStop’s content and FAQs became featured content in Google’s “Common Questions” search results feature.

Work Values Matcher
Launched the Work Values Matcher tool, a quick, 20-question online card sort activity that helps users identify the aspects of work they most value, find careers that match their personal work values, and learn how to identify a workplace that shares similar values.

Find a Remote Job
Launched a new Find a Remote Job tool to connect employers and job seekers with job opportunities that do not require the worker to be onsite. Listings include postings from state job banks and private employers that use the word “remote” in the posting. The tool is featured on the Employment Recovery portal that was launched during the pandemic.

Job Opening Detail
Added details about each job opening listed on the Job Finder. Details are employer-specific, but often include a description of the job and requirements of the position. Job opening details were also added to CareerOneStop ReEntry which makes them viewable on the version of CareerOneStop used within correctional facilities.

Compare Salaries
Launched a new Compare Salaries tool that allows users to compare how much they might earn in different careers and in different parts of the country.

Videos
Completed production of several different types of videos, closed-captioned in English and Spanish, including:

- Sixteen career cluster/industry videos that show the industries and types of organizations that typically employ workers in eight industry/career cluster groups, including finance and health science
- Unemployment Tips video that answers general questions about how to file for unemployment

Civilian-to-Military Occupation Translator
Updated the Civilian-to-Military Occupation Translator tool with a mobile-friendly design and integration of the O*NET API for the underlying crosswalk.

Enhanced License Finder
Launched an updated License Finder tool with new fields for detailed license information, including whether there are continuing education requirements related to the license, restrictions related to criminal records that users need to know, or other requirements related to work experience or having a degree.

55+ Workers
Revised the Older Workers section and renamed it 55+ Workers to address current workforce and employment trends, including virtual interviewing tips, suggestions for free and low-cost online and technical training, and common social media platforms for job search and employment networking.

New Content
- Published new footer pages for users to find information on all CareerOneStop Data Sources and how to Cite this Website
- Added new Federal Employment section for job seekers
- Added new Career Cluster page highlighting the new industry/cluster videos
What do users say about CareerOneStop?

"Your [Employment Recovery] portal is a terrific resource – thank you so much. I know it will help many people!"
– Tweeted by Alison Doyle, The Balance Careers and Career Tool Belt

"I wanted to write to let you know how pleased I am with [CareerOneStop]. I’m hoping to use it with my Adult Basic Education students this semester."
– Adult Basic Education Instructor

"You are amazing. I just want to thank you for all the help you gave to us. You were our little unemployment angel... Of all the people I emailed and called you were literally the only person that responded... I just hope you know what a difference you made for us. For me, a mom across the Pacific Ocean from my daughter in a global pandemic which is a horrible feeling. Yet, your simple acts of kindness made all the difference to me and my daughter.”
